Junction principal appointed

LIVERMORE- Dennis R. Hill, assistant principal at Fairview Intermediate School in Lafayette the past year, was appointed principal of Junction Avenue School at a special Livermore Valley Unified School District meeting Friday.

The 36-year old Hill succeeds Dr. William Tibbey who resigned earlier this year to take the principal's post at San Leandro High School.

Hill is married and has four children. He received his BS in mathematics from Cal State Hayward, his teaching credential from the University of California at Berkeley and his administrative credential at Cal State Hayward.

Hill is currently summer school principal in Moraga.

Before his two year tenure with the Lafayette district, Hill was a math and business instructor at Campolindo High School in Moraga. He also coach track and cross country. He was at Campolindo four years.

From 1970 to 72 he was a mathematics teacher at the Senior Camp, Alameda County Special School.

Hill served in the U.S. Navy from 1957 to 62 as a nuclear power technician aboard a nuclear submarine. In 1965 and 66 he was an assistant design engineer and technician at the University of California Lab at Los Alamos, New Mexico.

In other business Friday, the board adopted a publication budget in the amount of $20,822,458.

The board also approved a contract for paving at various district schools.

San Ramon pool opens today

After a brief dedication ceremony at 1 p.m. this afternoon, the San Ramon Olympic Pool will be open to the public — free — until 7 p.m. for swimming. The pool, run by the Valley Community Services District, will be open for free public swimming Monday through Friday from 1 to 6 p.m and weekends 1 to 7 p.m. as well as Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The VCSD board and a color guard will be present at the dedication today, while Chuck Ladner, Ann Jolley, Lila Euler and Ron Hyde (from left), VCSD board members are shown at a reception Friday afternoon.

Alameda County ponders plan to improve Santa Rita center

The antiquated Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center is scheduled to get some relief soon, but how much and when has not been determined yet.

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors must make some decisions this summer on the proposed Pre-Trial Detention Centers in Hayward and Oakland, and the decisions they make will radically affect Santa Rita.

The problems at Santa Rita are many — the most prominent being that it was built in 1942 and expected to be torn down in 1947 — but one of them is overcrowding.

Depending on the time of year, there are anywhere between 1,000 and 1,500 prisoners in the hands of the Sheriff's Department, and approximately 40 to 50 per cent of those are unsentenced, or pre-trial prisoners.

Unsentenced prisoners have been arrested on suspicion of a crime and held because they either can't or won't make bail or are ordered by a judge not to have bail set. Under the law, however, they are innocent until a jury rules on their case, and thus are not to be treated in the same manner as sentenced prisoners.

In fact, the law says that sentenced and unsentenced prisoners must be segregated at all times, which further compounds the problem at an overcrowded facility like Santa Rita.

Therefore, the county is planning to build a pair of jails for unsentenced prisoners that will be located near the courts, so that transportation to the courts will not be a problem. Then, a full-fledged county jail is scheduled to go up to replace Santa Rita completely.

However, pulling 500-700 prisoners out of Santa Rita will alleviate some of the problems at the outmoded prison, and it is hoped the facilities will be ready by 1978.

A preliminary report on the pre-trial detention center by Helmuth, Obata and Kassabaum and the Kaiser Engineers indicated that a total peak population of prisoners of 1,075 should handle the needs of the county through 1990.

However, that figure has drawn some fire from the board of supervisors. Some feel that it is not necessary to house over 800 and that increased releases of pre-trial prisoners will save the county from building a larger facility.

Las Positas challenge unanswered

OAKLAND - County Counsel Tom Fennone said Friday he would not decide whether to respond to the "challenge" issued Thursday on New Town by the City of Livermore until he has received a copy of the letter.

At a press conference Thursday, Livermore City Attorney Bob Logan challenged Alameda CountY "to go back to square one" in its consideration of a proposed General Plan Amendment for Harlan Geldermann's proposed Las Positas New Town.

The city is basing its challenge on the fact that Alameda County Superior Court Judge George Phillips declared the supervisors' passage of an amendment to the General plan in December of last year, which allowed New Town, was illegal because it was the fourth amendment in that year and, under state law, only three are allowed each year.

Fennone did say, however, that he disagreed with Logan's conclusions because, although the judge did state the General Plan Amendment was illegal, "he denied the city summary judgement on that point."

Fennone added when he receives a copy of the letter that Livermore is sending to the county, he will determine whether a response should be issued.

Dublin homeowners block cluster housing project

The Silvergate Homeowners' Association protest to the Alameda County Planning Commission over a proposed cluster housint on Dublin Green apparently was successful.

In March, the homeoweers protested Ward-Ryder Company's plans to put 67 homes on what area residents call Church Hill — just south of St. Raymond's Church — and on July 29, the company will withdraw its request for that kind of zoning.

In fact, Ward-Ryder will ask the planners to rezone the area to rel hemes with a density jutt slightly above that of the neighboring areas. The density of 6,500 square feet per dwelling unit is the same as the density just across San Ramon Road from the proposed development.

Nonetheless, the Homeowners' Association will still hold a meeting this coming Wednesday (July 23) at 7:30 p.m. at Nielsen School.

"People might come and cheer" said Kathie Waterson of the association. She did add that other matters will be discussed at the meeting aside from the Dublin Green situation.

The original Ward-Ryder plan called for 67 homes clustered around private roads, but the new zoning requires county roads. "They'll lose something" said Mike Henn of the planning department and said a very rough estimate of the number of homes on the hill would abe about 50.

There are 12.28 acres of property on the hill and Waterson concedes "Most people don't want to see anything up there."

However, she said "What we're fighting for is a continuation of the kind of housing there is here now."

Apparently the fledgling Silvergate Homeowners' Association has accomplished that goal.

Valley septic tank review

Calling for "a map with a red dot on it for every (septic) tank," zone 7 directors ordered a review of the Valley's private sewage disposal plans.

Director Robert Pearson demanded to know what type of tanks are being approved, where the lost flow is going and what policies the board has to protect the water table.

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors recently approved use of an existing tank on Livermore's Portola Avenue, and a four-home subdivision outside Pleasanton.

Pearson noted Pleasanton has a policy of denying septic tanks to sites of less than five acres, but that it continually approves variances down to the fraction of an acre.

Directors fear the proliferation of septic tanks will damage the unwater supply.

California Regional Water Quality Control Board Executive Director Fred Dierker consistently has objected to the continuing approval of the tanks, especially in Pleasanton.

While the RWQCB has delegated its authority to the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency, the supervisors can override their decisions.

Under its authority to protect the water table, the zone repeatedly has asked other Valley agencies to forward requests for tanks through the zone's staff. Cooperation, director Joseph Concannon pointed out, has been less than enthusiastic.

"We need something with teeth in it," he charged, noting the board's vociferous objections to the proposed Kaiser dump, but its apparent complacency in the face of individual septic tanks.

Guest ranch suit

Court rule nears in Apperson case

OAKLAND — Within two weeks, a judgement will be handed down in the environmental lawsuit which seeks to block William Apperson from building a guest ranch in the rolling hills near Sunol.

After listening to final arguments Friday afternoon, Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lyle Cook said he would take the matter under submission and would rule by the end of July.

The suit was brought by the Sierra Club and other environmentally concerned groups in January after Alameda County had given Apperson a permit for the 145-acre health spa.

The Diamond A Guest Ranch, as Apperson has namd the project, would be built on his 2,500-acre ranch on Apperson Ridge.

Owen O'Donnell, representing the Sierra Club, argued that the county had violated the state law and its own zoning ordinances by approving the project because it was inconsistent with the county's open space plan.

He also claimed the board of supervisors had not given sufficient consideration to the adverse environmental impacts of the project, which would be located near Sunol Regional Park.

Referring to transcripts of the Apperson proceedings before the board, O'Donnell said comments made by the supervisors to the effect the Environmental Impact Report was a "farce" and was a "little extreme" constituted "evidence that showed the board did not consider the EIR."

Alameda County Counsel Tom Fennone argued that all but one of the seven plaintiffs in the suit did not even have legal standing because they had been involved in the administrative proceedings regarding the Apperson proposal.

(A recent court decision found that those who had not been involved in administrative proceedings involving such a project could later bring suit because they had not been represented in the original decision.)

The Sierra Club, League of Women Voters, Endangered Species Committee of California, Preserve Area Ridgelands, Tri-City Ecology Center and Sherman Lewis had all spoken at the various hearings regarding Apperson and he added they had not "exhausted their aministrative remedies."

The seventh plaintiff, the Regional Parks Association, "has the right to go to court on the merits," Fennone said, because it had not been involved in the administrative proceedings.

However, Fennone argued that group which utilizes Sunol REgional Park for hikes could not prove they would be adversely affected by the development. "Are they saying if a permit is granted, something will happen to Sunol Park?" Fennone asked. "Sunol Park won't be closed down," he added.

Livermore reviewing new budget

LIVERMORE — The city council will continue to review the preliminary 1975-76 fiscal year budget at a study session scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday in the Municipal Court Chambers, 39 S. Livermore Ave.

The preliminary budget was for $11.5 million but tentative changes indicated by the council have raised that figure to $11.8 million — $4.9 million for general government, $1.8 million for municipal enterprises and $5 million for capital outlay.

A public hearing on the proposed budget will be held Monday night as the first order of business at the regular council meeting, which will follow the study session. The public hearing is set for 8 p.m.

The proposed municipal tax rate, which must be set finally in late August following the city's receipt of its assessed valuation, totals $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation. This represents a net five-cent increase over last year's tax rate.

The figure for the 1975-76 fiscal year includes a proposed $.815 for the general fund; $.18, retirement fund; $.19, park and recreation; $.22, library fund, and $.095, bond funds.

The city council is expected to adopt the budget following the public hearing.

New Town litigation on agenda

LIVERMORE — The city council will hold an executive session Monday at noon to discuss litigation matters, particularly the City of Livermore's suit against the Alameda County Board of Supervisors for it's action regarding the proposed Las Positas New Town development.

Members will meet in the library of Councilman John Staley's law office, 379 S. Livermore Ave.

Strawberry festival

Jon Powers enjoys a refreshing bite of ice cream with strawberries —— the old fashoned way. This is just a sample of what is in the offering for those attending the dedication of Century House and Bicentennial Park today beginning at 1 p.m. Strawberries with ice cream will be served from 2 to 4 p.m. by the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club for a nominal cost of $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12 and senior citizens over 60.

Revenue loss from redevelopment

Zone 7 water directors oppose Pleasanton unit plan

By a five to one majority, directors of Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District voted Wednesday night "to object to the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency, especially as it applies to future revenue for the zone."

Board members were upset by Pleasanton Director of Housing and Community Development John Bowling's presentation which, they charged, showd the zone a minimum loss in revenue of $30,000 for the next 45 years: some $1.35 million.

Bowling countered that the loss amounted to less than three percent of the zone's annual operating budget.

According to Bowling the redevelopment area includes the yet to be developed Stoneridge Regional Shopping Center, the downtown, core area of the city and a strip of land joining the two, including southern Hopyard Road, the Sports and Recreation Park and a parcel parallel to I-680 up to the proposed shopping center.

The assessed values on that land will be fixed at the base year, 1974-75, and the incremental tax revenues of the future resulting from inflation and development will be poured back to the redevelopment area.

"All taxing agencies," Bowling said, "will get the taxes related to (the base year)," approximately $8 million in assessed values.

First phase work on the project should increase the assessment by $7.5 million in three or four years, he continued, plus "some very minor incremental increases from the downtown area."

The Environmental Impact Report submitted to the zone at the directors' request based the zone's loss on a 29-cent tax rate per $100 assessed value, but chief of water resources division Mun Mar told the board that did not include some 9-cents for bond retirement.

Figures should have reflected the district's 38-cent tax rate, which, he said, will fall to approximately 34-cents next year.

Bowling's calulations showed a loss of $21,500 per year, while Mar's reflected the $30,000 figure.

Director George Lydiksen, the lone dissenting vote, told his colleagues he wanted more hard information on what revenues would be gained through connection fees and water usage, noting that since it's not necessarily in the county's best interest to reassess the area (since they, too, won't receive the incremental revenue) values may not go up as both the board and Bowling assume.

Director Robert Pearson asked the board if it is "willing to sit by and charge higher rates and at the same time see a considerable portion of our tax base eroded ... Our responsibility is to get that money."

Revenue lost on increased assessments must be made up through increased rates, he charged.

Bowling admitted that the loss must be made up, but said it would be spread so thin among the population as to be "insignificant."

"All county agencies — including school districts and the county itself — will have to do it," he said.

County counsel Kelvin Booty told the sometimes astonished directors that their consent to the project was not required, according to California redevelopment laws.

He held some questions over the legality of including undeveloped land (the shopping center area) in a "redevelopment" project, however, and was instructed by the zone to examine the plan's propriety in that light.

To the best of his knowledge, he said, a citizens' referendum could challenge the project.

He also was told to investigate that channel.

The district will file a written objection by the city's July 31 deadline, and voice their objections at the Aug. 11 public hearing.

A seldom sight

Although some types actually bloom every year, the Century plant has a reputation of blooming once every hundred years. This plant, on Richard and Sharon Stevenson's property at 1416 Anza Way in Livermore, is no exception. They report it has been growing a foot a day for the last month, and is ready to bloom. Although the leaves die, the roots remain and soon grow another plant. Photo by Bill Cauble

Airport asks city 'hands off' policy

LIVERMORE — The chairman of the airport advisory committee has sent the city council a letter asking that the idea of imposing a franchise tax on the municipal airport be dropped.

Chairman Bill Bennett, at the request of his fellow committee members, outlined why a franchise tax on the airport at this stage of its development would not be in the best interest of the city or the airport.

Bennett argued that the airport already contributes considerable revenue to the city; airport users are burdened by a multitude of costs by both the county and federal governments; the airport indirectly benefits the citizens of Livermore byproducing an improved business and industrial climate as well as an attractive entrance to the city, and to impose a franchise tax would set a precedent that eventually could reduce its ability to be self-supporting.

The committee got wind that Councilman Don Miller had suggested levying a franchise tax on the airport and increasing the fees for services and immediately decided to send the council a letter requesting "hands off" airport operations.

Pointing to income the airport now provides the city, Bennett made mention of the personal property tax assessed each aircraft which amounts to $20,618 annually, with $5,360 returned to the city's General Fund.

"These monies are used for the operation of the city and none of these funds reach the airport," he wrote.

"The airport department also pays for the administrative and other specialized services from the city through an assessment equal to 10 percent of our personnel costs, or approximately $4,500 per year," he added.

The chairman also noted that the airport is self-sustaining, not the usual case for airport operations such as Livermore's.

"It is the airport committee's view that the airport presently contributes considerably to the General Fund and to the whole community and that a franchise tax would be an excessive additional burden on the airport.

"It would also set a precedent that could further drain the resources of the airport and reduce its ability to be self-supporting.

"The airport has been in existence for only 10 years and there are additional improvements that will be needed in the future such as navigational aides to improve safety, hangar space to develop more income, aircraft tie-down areas and other development costs that will be necessary to provide the services to the industrial and business activities in the valley," the chairman explained.

Bennett also asked that if the council continues to consider an airport franchise tax, it notify the committee so members could be present to make their views known on the matter.

Livermore schools appoint principal

LIVERMORE — Dr. Roy L. Risner, an assistant principal with the Banning (Calif.) Unified School District, will be the next principal of Green and Christensen Elementary Schools on Livermore's northside.

Risner succeeds Mel Ashley, who had been in charge of the sister schools for two years before objections from a group of parents and teachers led to his resignation. Ashley is expected to be appointed to a teaching position for the coming year.

Dr. Risner has been a teacher and vice principal for 12 years in Lubbock, Tex. and Altus, Okla. He has been an assistant principal in Banning for the past three years.

In addition to a general administration credential, Risner also holds standard supervisory, general elementary and general secondary teaching credentials He earned his bachelor's and master of arts degrees from South Western State College, Oklahoma and his doctorate from United States International University, San Diego.

A screening committee of parents, teachers, administrators, a school board member, a classified employe and director of personnel Sterling Macfarlane considered 37 applications for the position.

After 12 candidates were interviewed, finalists met with Superintendent Leo Croce, who then recommended Risner's appointment.

County planners eye Sunol Ridge project

Alameda County Bureau

Edwin Burr's proposed development along Sunol Ridge will come before the Alameda County Planning Commission tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 in Hayward.

Burr, who would like to build eight homes on 100 acre lots and leave 655 acres for open space, has run into oppostion from the planning staff due to the steep and winding road that would give access to the dwellings.

However, two weeks ago the planning commissioners were effusive in their praise of the project and it appears that they will approve Burr's subdivision tomorrow.

One reason that the planners did not vote on the matter earlier was a directive from the board of supervisors stating that new developments should have sewage and water services supplied by local districts. Although Burr's development has neither, the supervisors clarified their instructions a week ago and stated that the directive did not apply to subdivisions with 100 acre (or larger) lots.

With that stumbling block out of the way, the only real argument against the subdivision — which is just off Niles Canyon Road and parallel to Kilkare Canyon Road — is the access road.

According to the county surveyor, the road will be more dangerous than Santos Ranch Road and will contain one stretch with a 23 per cent grade. The county's maximum grade is 15 per cent for its roads.

Livermore Greek family knows their Italian

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles about immigrant families who have proved that the American free enterprise system still works. All that is required is willingness to work.

By REINA WHITNEY

Here's that "hidden away little Italian place" that we all seek. Except this very popular, choice breakfast, lunch and dinner house is not "hidden away" in North Beach in San Francisco, but on Holmes Ave. at the Granada Shopping Center in Livermore.

No longer need you travel to the city to dine on bounteous true Italian food. "Livermore Joe's" offers you Veal Parmigiana, Piccata and Saltimbocco, any day of the week.

You might get your Fettuccine Alfredo served on gold plates at Doro's, but it won't taste any better than it does at "Joe's" and it will cost you about a tenth of the price.

"Livermore Joe," who is really James Karkazis is not even Italian, but a Greek immigrant from Sparta.

Although his restaurant specializes in superb Italian food, this master chef is equally at home preparing French or Greek dishes. He has worked in eating houses where he was expected to prepare as many as 250 items from a menu.

Veal Cordon Bleu, Chicken Jerusalem, Filet of Sole Meuniere and heavenly Canneloni are some of the choice selections he offers you.

"Joe" Karkazis came to San Francisco when he was 18 years old to live with his uncle. He spoke no English and had no skills; so he went to work as a bus boy.

He worked in restaurants throughout the financial district; most notably Ruggio's and Doro's. While there he was allowed to observe the techniques of such famous chefs as Bartola and the French chef, Lucienne, who at one time had been head chef of the Brown Derby in Los Angeles.

However, it wasn't until he went to work for Joe Paoli, of Paoli's Restaurant in San Francisco, that he was given a chance to train in the kitchen. Joe Paoli saw to it that he was properly schooled and later became that establishment's head chef; a post he held for five years.

His experience also includes traveling to the various PSA Hotel holdings to train their chefs on proper food preparation.

He always dreamed of owning his own restaurant, but wanted to move out of the city. He yearned for the country atmosphere reminiscent of his native Greece, and chose Livermore in which to settle.

Some discouraged his choice of site, saying it was too much of a hamburgher haven, with a seating capacity of only 68.

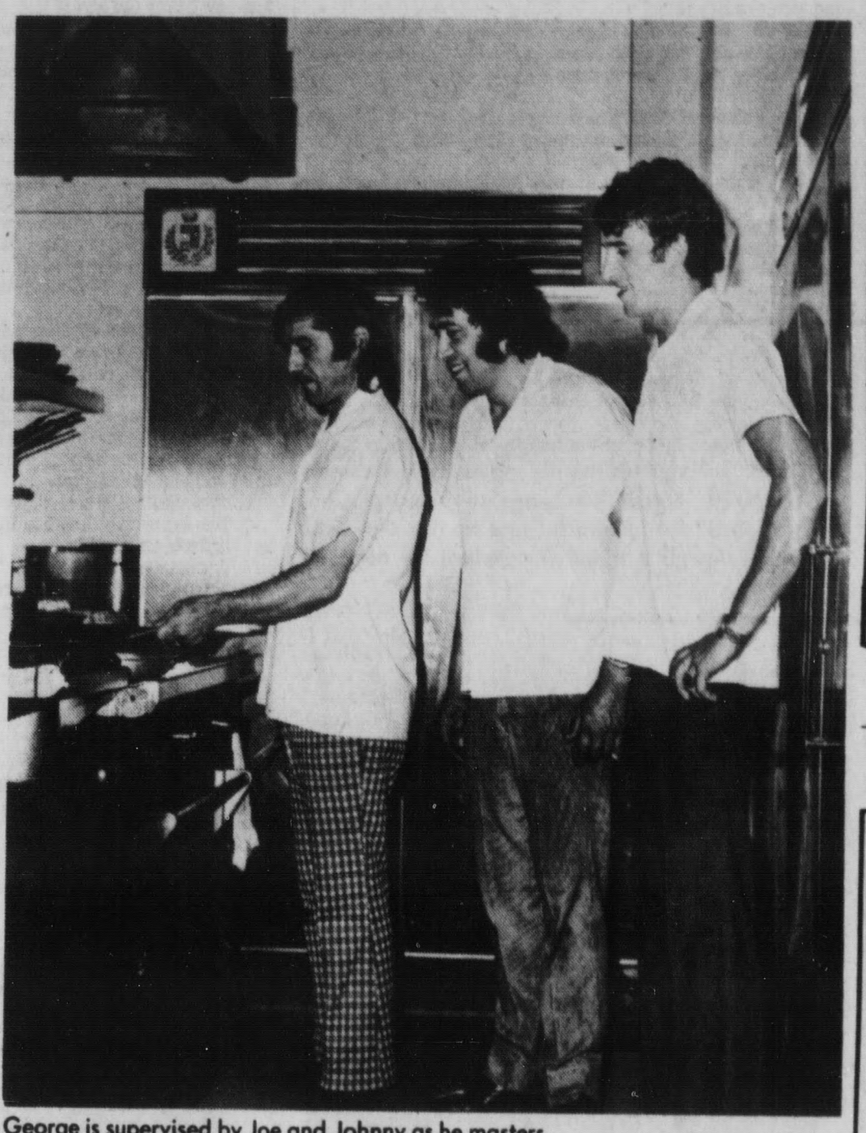
The decor is still an inane Mediterranean with a few nice brick touches "Joe" has added.

But once you step in and smell the aromas coming from that kitchen, the atmosphere immediately becomes "Italian."

While we were talking, "Joe" served up the most delicious omelette it has ever been my priviledge to taste. It was filled with fresh mushrooms, green peppers and onions and spiced to perfection.

Joe is a stocky, muscular, well-built man, bristling with vitality. As he talks to you, he moves fast; stirring a hugh pot of spaghetti sauce, checking a temperature, preparing orders and, like a true proprietor, even mans the cash register.

His friendly, wide smile offers you an immediate welcome. He affectionately introduces his equally handsome brothers, George and Johnny. They greet you with, "Hi, how are you?" because so far that's all the English they know. They help their older brother in his restaurant every day.



George is supervised by Joe and Johnny as he masters the technique of cooking.

His 65 year old mother was back there too, helping to chop the many pounds of fresh vegetables needed for the day's business.

Since bringing his mother and father and two brothers over from Greece six months ago, this completed the migration of the Karkazis family. A sister, living in San Francisco, arrived earlier.

Brothers George and Johnny, unmarried, live in Livermore with their parents. Joe also lives in Livermore with his American wife, who is expecting their first child.

His eyes fill with emotion when he talks about the wonderful opportunities everyone has in the United States "as long as you are willing to work."

He arrives at work no later than seven in the morning and averages at least fourteen hours a day.

He takes such pride in his spotless establishment and is eager to show you that he will not use anything frozen. An enthusiast and perfectionist, he demands the best of everything from suppliers.

He buys only the pick of the local crops and only fresh meat, fish, and vegetales are ever used. Everything is cooked to order.

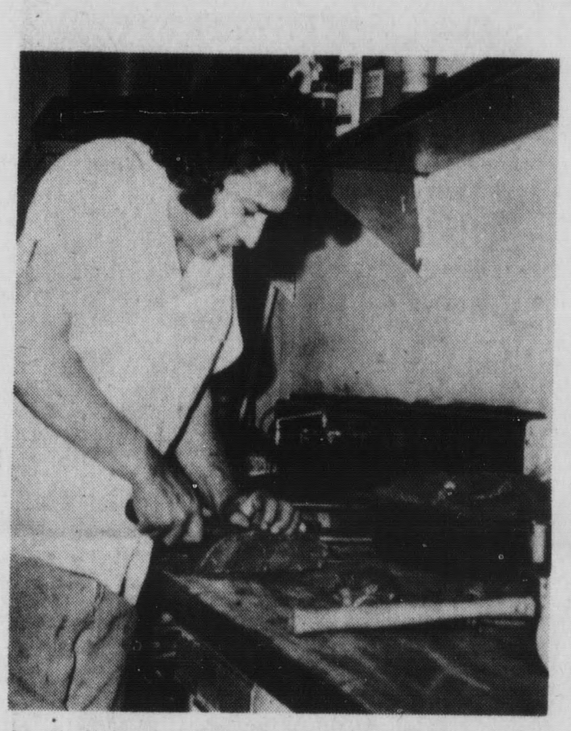
Watching him prepare his Veal Cordon Bleu for the day, he pointed out the excellent prociutto and fresh swiss cheese he used to fill the veal he was pounding.

They say a truly successful Italian restaurant, will have "good ministrone and spaghetti sauce, fine veal and excellent wine and coffee." If that's true, then "Livermore Joe's" is going to have them standing in line before long.

He is very grateful for his good fortune, and for safely bringing his family here to be with him. However, all this bounty seems to fill him with a kind of desperate frustration as he remembers the miserable poverty of his native county.

He says he speaks "Greek, Italian, and a little Spanish and English," in that order. As soon as they all learn English a little bit better, they all hope to become United States citizens.

Who does all the cooking at home? He says his wife does it all!



Joe Karkazis demonstrates how to make veal cordon bleu.

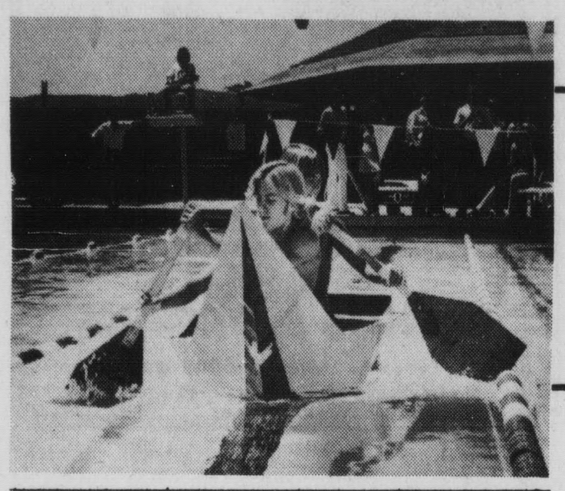
Pooling ideas

by Bob Anglin

We at Continental Pools are sometimes asked "Why is my neighbor's pool so hard on the children's feet?" This problem of calcium carbonate depositing on plaster floors, walls and steps, or on plastic liners of less permanent type pools is due to carelessness the first few days the pool is filled. Most water in our area has a fairly substantial amount of calcium hardness, and when the pool is first filled, carbo, dioxide from the air is absorbed into the water, forming a cloudy precipitate calcium carbonate. If this cloudy substance is not removed from the pool, it will crystallize on the inner surfaces of the pool, and feel like sandpaper.

When our pools are freshly filled, we advise our customers to thoroughly brush this cloud down the main drain, so it can be removed by the filter. Then, when the water is clear, and no additional cloudy precipitate is present, the filter should be backwashed.

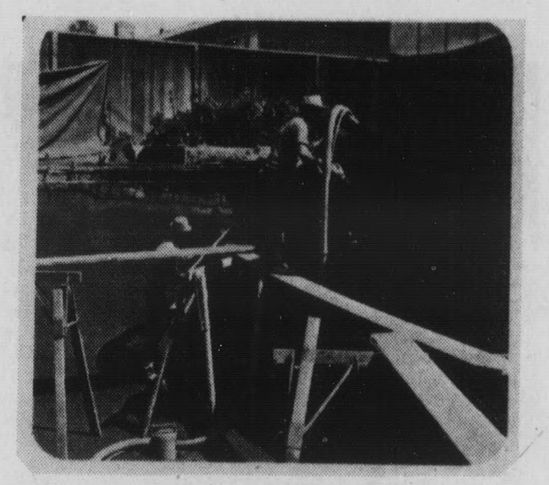
Reliable pool service companies in the area can assist one in balancing the water chemistry, so that a minimum of this chemical reaction occurs from then on, or, the pool equipment store that sells chemicals can advise you. Well balanced and treated pool water should be clearer, cleaner, and purer than your tap water.

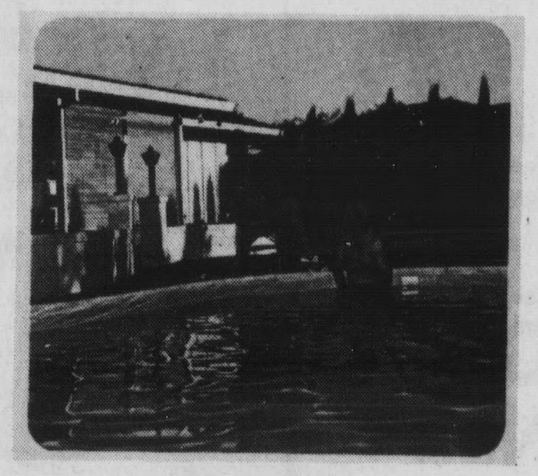


Ship ahoy!

You don't have to be adventuresome to enjoy a backyard pool. The opportunities are endless to think of new ways to have funbecause its usage isn't seasonul. Contact you local pool contractor and let him show you interesting designs that will complement the decor of your home.

Six basic steps in building a pool





It's easy!

Construction of your swimming pool starts with surveying the land, (1) — and excavation begins quickly thereafter. (2) — Reinforcing steel is carefully placed to insure rigidity. (3) — Spraying the gunite follows immediately, and the pool shell is half-completed. (4) — Tile is set in place next to add beauty and a sure grip. (5) — Decking and plastering comes next, and after drying — (6) — Presto! You now have a beautiful pool of your own to enjoy for years to come.

Chabot names dean for valley campus

LIVERMORE - Dr. Charles W. Brydon, currently director of special programs for the California Community and Junior College Association, has been apppointed assistant dean of instruction at Chabot College's Valley campus in Livermore.

Brydon will assume the position in September. His appointment was confirmed last week by trustees of the South County Community College District.

He was formerly assistant executive director of the California Junior College Association, which represents California community colleges before the state legislature and administrative branches of state government.

A former lecturer in education at the University of California's Division of Higher Education at Berkeley, Brydon taught at Chabot and Merritt Colleges, and the Fielding Institute in Santa Barbara.

He was also administrative assistant to the Chancellor of the Peralta Community College District and acted as liaison coordinator with other educational institutions and organizations.

Brydon filled a number of consutlting positions and was chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on Tenure and Evaluation for the California Community Colleges in 1970 - 71. He is also the author of many articles published in professional journals and was a Kellogg Fellow in Community College Education at the University of California at Berkeley.

He graduated from Fresno State College in 1958, earned a Master of Arts degree in Polical Science from San Francisco State in 1966, and was granted a Doctor of Philiosophy degree from the University of California's Division of Higher Education in 1973. He and his wife, Alice, and their son, Louis live in Berekeley.

In other action, the Trustees granted a 10 per cent across the board salary increase to non-teaching employes at Chabot College at both the Livermore and Hayward campuses retroactive to July 1.

The classified staff had sought a 12.1 per cent cost of living adjustment based on the Consumer Price Index plus an additional 3.8 per cent.

The board noted that the increase actually amounted to 12.62 per cent when retirement, medical, dental and related benefits are included.

In another action, the board amended existing policy to permit classified staff members to retire with full medical benefits at age 55 after 15 years of service. The staff had sought a continuation of medical benefits for retirees at age 55 after 10 years of employment.

Under the action, non-teaching employes may also retire with full medical benefits at age 56 after 14 years of service; at 57 after 13 years; 58 year after 12 years; 59 after 11 years, and 60 after 10 years.

In other action, the board voted to increase student hourly wage rates to 20 cents effective January 1, 1976 to conform with federal statutes.

Harvest Park offers writing tips for tots

PLEASANTON - How do you inspire children to write good stories and poems?

Ann Yankovich, a professional writer and teacher, is sharing some of her secrets in a two-week course at Harvest Park Elementary School, 4900 Valley Ave.

"Writing Is for Kids" is the topic of the course, which is offered through Cal State, Hayward, for three units of credit. The class meets all afternoon, daily for the two-week period beginning July 21.

Ms. Yankovich, head of the Marylin Avenue School media center in Livermore, has a background as editor, freelance writer, teacher and principal. She will be assisted by Livermore teachers David Cooper and Merilyn Calhoun.

The course is designed to teach people who work with children to help them see imaginatively, become self-confident in expressing themselves, create their own recording media and discover their innate creative ability.

Consultant Calhoun will talk about such expressive techniques as animation, black-light stage, bookmaking, dioramas, film frames, film strips, puppets and stages, slides, story board and TV "rolls."

Film, music and journalism are also discussed in the rich course.

Enrollment forms may be obtained from Cal State, Hayward, by calling 881-3605.

"Quick Action On Home Buying" Advises Marlene Stearns, Vintage

Anyone contemplating the purchase of a new home couldn't pick a better time to do it than right now, according to Marlene Stearns of VINTAGE REALTY, Pleasanton.

"Single family home interest rates have gone about as low as they are going to be in the foreseeable future and, in fact, have already begun to climb again, so a potential homebuyer who waits even six more months to purchase a home could miss the boat," Mrs. Stearns warns.

"The average mortgage interest rate currently is in the 9 to 9¼ percentage range, but I don't see how the savings and loan associations can go much below that mark when you consider what their money is costing them. Savings and loans are the backbone of the housing industry, and if they don't have a constant flow of money, the housing industry has problems. Last year, competitive investment instruments, such as treasury notes, treasury bills, and certificates of deposit drew deposits out of the savings and loans and, consequently, they had little to lend for housing, and what little they did lend carried a high price tag," Mrs. Stearns explained.

"Now money is flowing back into the savings and loans, because rates on competitive investment instruments at the moment are relatively low. But if the government allows interest rates to climb and then starts a tremendous amount of borrowing later this year, funds may again flow out of the savings and loans. Consequently, rates are not likely to fall much below 9 percent and, conceivably, could go to 10 percent within a year."

Another excellent reason to buy a home now, Mrs. Stearns says, is the government's recently enacted 5 percent tax credit for homebuyers which, in effect, "gives the buyer 5 percent of his purchase price all over again." In order to qualify, she emphasizes, the buyer must purchase a home before December of 1975 and it must be his or her principal place of residence, not a second home, such as a vacation cottage or weekend retreat.

The Environmental Protection Agency also plays a key role in housing, especially as it relates to the matter of automobile traffic congestion. In addition, many cities have no-growth programs or actual moratoriums where no home building permits are being issued, so that land costs are automatically rising because so much is being removed from use.

Another crucial factor in the escalating cost of housing is the fact that so many items in a home have a petroleum base, including formica, linoleum, asphalt, etc., and, as Mrs. Stearns says, "We all know what is happening to the price of petroleum."

Uniform breath test now used in county

A new, fully operational uniform breath alcohol testing program is underway in Alameda County, according to Sheriff Tom Houchins.

Five modern intoxilyzer instruments have been installed throughout the county — including one at Santa Rita — and law enforcement officers from any jurisdiction will be able to use the instruments.

In addition, the Oakland and San Leandro police Departments have also purchased similar instruments.

It is expected that the devices will significantly decrease the overall costs of this program on a county-wide basis. Savings will be effected through minimizing the time required by officers to conduct analyses and in decreased expenses for expendable supplies.

Further advantages are expected in court and prosecution procedures of individuals arrested for driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

Human relation session

Although only one member of the public showed up at the Alameda County Human Relations Commission hearing on the proposed redistricting of the supervisorial districts, there was still a great deal of political discussion going on.

The Thursday night meeting in Pleasanton was one of five public hearings the HRC is holding throughout the county to determine what objections, if any, citizens have to the six plans drawn up by Supervisor Tom Bates.

The redistricting is necessary due to the shifts in population in the county and the necessity to keep some kind of parity between the five areas.

Perhaps the biggest hope of the valley — to get seven districts rather than the present five — was not discussed at the hearing, because that alteration would take a change in the county charter.

The 11 people present at the meeting Tuesday — three HRC commissioners, three reporters, three HRC staffers, one friend of a commissioner and one member of the public — still got in some discussion on the six alternatives and their ramifications.

Oddly enough, the only member of the public to show up was Dick Oliver of Union City, who ran for the Assembly seat now held by Floyd Mori. For his benefit, Eddie James of HRC went through each of the six plans, including the so-called "dinosaur" plan, which groups Livermore Pleasanton, Dublin, San Ramon and parts of Castro Valley, Hayward, Union City, Fremont, Oakland and Piedmont in one big district.

All concerned admit that the supervisors will not approve that plan. and some close observers of the county scene believe the real choice lies between Plan III and Plan V.

Neither plan would radically affect District 1, now represented by John Murphy and including the valley, but the effect on the other areas could be major.

There has been much talk of a "minority" district, where it would be possible for a member of a minority race to be elected and Plans III and V both have that possibility.

In fact, Plan III has two districts that could elect a minority — one including Berkeley and the University of California and the other including parts of Oakland and Emeryville.

BOB MORI DISPLAYS SERVICE IN LIVERMORE JUNIOR TENNIS
He bowed quietly to Steve Williford, 6-0, 6-0, in boys-16

Family affair in junior net

All seeded players advanced as anticipated in the Livermore Tennis Club's 1975 Valley Junior Tennis Tournament yesterday at Granada High

The popular tournament will conclude on Monday with the finals of all six age groups, and will feature semi-final action today.

Andy Finn and Doug Larson worked up little sweat as they advanced to the boys-18 semis. Finn defeated Perry Fotos, 6-0, 6-1, while Larson dumped Glen Journeay, 6-0, 6-0.

Art Brannan has the dubious honor of attempting to knock off Finn, after tripping Mike Fracisco, 6-3, 6-3, while Dave Pefley will meet Larson, having disposed of Rick Burroughs, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

In girls-16's, top seed Lori Larson had a bye, and will face Lisa Sparks, a 6-3, 6-1 winner over Mary Devany, in the semis. Meanwhile, number two seed Mary Pat Schall will battle Cindy Roach in the other semi-final bout.

Dave Finn and Steve Williford advanced to the semis in the boys-16's with little trouble. Finn downed Mike Knell and Bill Jenkins , while Williford whitewashed Robert Mori and won by default over Phil Newkirk.

Ron Lapp will face Finn, as he mowed down Darin Plott and Jeff Mackanic, while Bob Cannon will try to foil Williford's hopes by virtue of a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Paul Smith and a come-from-behind 1-6, 6-4, 6-1 win over Mike Crow.

Mindy Gottesman blanked Christine Bonacci and will meet Sylvia Knell in today's semi-finals Miss Knell outplayed Phyllis Browning, 6-4, 6-2.

Stephanie Schall and Wendy Sears will do battle after coming off easy opening round wins in girls-14 action.

Todd Larson and David Reineking appear headed for the boys-14 finals after having won convincingly in the opening rounds. Larson will meet Rene Meyer, while Williford will match volleys with Ken Kemp in the quarter-finals.

Troy Larson, top seeded in the boys-12, will encounter Derek Brannan in a quarter-final match, while Todd Maurid , the age group's second seed, faces Andy West.

In other boys-12 action, Ricky Gottesman goes against Scott Warman, while David Reynoldson plays Rob Getty.

Alums too much for The Purple

Is the Amador Valley High basketball team as good as the one that won a second-straight EBAL championship last winter?

Not yet.

The current Don varsity found out there is a way to go to reach parity last week in a 60-53 summer league loss to the alumni, actually, the Amador varsity of last year.

The Dons were paced by Mike Hill's 13 points, and 10 by Ben Cambra. That was not enough though, as grad Andy Finn poured through 16 for the winners, Jeff Hine, 15, and Phil Hansen, 14.

In other action, San Ramon held off a late Dublin charge for a 50-44 triumph. The Gaels outscored the Wolves, 13-8 in the fourth quarter. It still wasn't enough, however, to negate the effect of a dismal four-point first quarter against San Ramon.

Brad Blake paced the Wolves with 13 points.

Dublin's Ed LaPerle scored 10.

College Park ripped California, 67-39, in the night's only other game. Jim Mason of the Falcons scored 22 points.

Byron Steward paced the Grizzlies with eight points.

Cross and Nelson fired a final day 63, nine-under par, at Spyglass Hill Friday.

Cuts not severe, predicts Rose

sports
Mike Zampa, editor

Reductions in athletics for the Amador Valley School District's three high schools won't come near equalling the 20 per cent figure bandied about for the past three months, business manager Doug Rose said last week.

"A few thousand dollars," have been trimmed from the budget, Rose said, but that shouldn't drastically alter the sports outlook.

"I don't remember specifics," Rose said. "I didn't sit in on any of those meetings. But it is nowhere near a 20 per cent reduction."

According to Rose, the district's high schools, Amador Valley, Foothill and Dublin, will be able to field nearly a full complement of sports beginning in September.

Entire programs will not be dropped, he said. It had been speculated that certain sports, baseball, swimming and soccer, for instance, would be trimmed from the after school curriculum, and turned over to community leagues.

That won't happen next year, he said. Some sports, however, may undergo a consolidation of freshman and junior varsity teams. And others, not recognized in the East Bay Athletic League, may be eliminated.

Coaching positions are for the most part, secure for next season as well. In rare instances, where there an abundance of assistants, one position could be lopped off, Rose said.

The budget was first revealed by the school board last week. It will be subject to an Aug. 5 public hearing, then ready for ratification.

Alterations in the athletic budget are still possible, Rose said, but not likely.

It was feared last spring that the school district, and indeed all schools within the EBAL, might be forced to sharply curtail athletic programs.

Emergency guidelines were drawn up to indicate how member schools could trim their budgets without disrupting the EBAL. Measures ranged from the elimination of busing and towels in locker rooms, to the extreme of eliminating certain sports.

The EBAL stressed that those measures were contingencies, and pushed to maintain the scope of its athletic programs.

So far at least the Amador School District has succeeded in that regard.

"When we got all through with the budget, we had taken a little bit from here, and a little from there, and we didn't have to cut as deeply as expected," Rose said.

As for months of speculation concerning a possible 20 per cent budget slash, Rose added, "We never conjectured on that. They weren't our stories."

Grijalva HR's pace Nationals

Kevin Grijalva smacked solo home runs in the second and sixth innings to vault Livermore National past South Danville, 3-2, and into the semi-finals of the Major League All-Star Tournament

Kevin's two RBI's were the difference in the game. Mike McCarn drove in the other run with a single.

Danville's Bill Deitsch had a double, and Doug Wheeler drove in a run.

Winning pitcher Ben Breazeale pitched a five-hitter with eight strikeouts and won base-on-balls.

Russell Porth and Rich Mansfield had hits for the winners.

Pleasanton American suffered a 5-4 loss to Fremont, after leaving the tying and winning runs on base in the sixth inning.

Trace Wallis was crucial to the American attack, stealing home twice. Teammate Gregg Doherty had the only Pleasanton hit, and also stole home. Steve Duke drove in a run for the losers.

Dublin Valley sucumbed to the two-hit, 13-strikeout pitching of Darren Glorioso in losing to Newark American, 4-1.

Mike Volv's solo home run, and a two-run blast by Mark Alkar, both in the third inning, defeated Dublin.

The losers scored in the sixth inning on Jim Grant's triple and an infield out by Dave Hampton. Jim Cartan had the only other Dublin hit.

Billy for Ed

All-American Billy Anderson, a tailback from El Cerrito High School, has been named to replace Ed Miller on the Contra Costa All-Star team that will meet Alameda County Aug 15 in the 10th charity football game between the two squads.

Miller has signed a professional baseball contract with the Texas Rangers and is ineligible to play in the all-star game according to NCAA rules.

Anderson, 5-10, 185, rushed for 1,181 yards last season. He'll play at Stanford this fall.

He scored 12 touchdowns for El Cerrito last year.

Family fun on a Sunday afternoon

Do you remember how good fresh strawberries used to taste? - particularly when served on the lawn in Pleasanton. When was the last "Community Band Concert" you attended? How many times have you defended "this town's charming traditions," but found yourself unable to contribute to that cause?

This Sunday afternoon, in a delightful Santa Rita Road setting, there is opportunity to satisfy all those old-fashioned ideas about family fun. The dedication of Century House and Bicentennial Park will be a moment of triumph for those hundreds of Pleasantonites who helped make that unique venture possible. (While not the only "fine old house" worth saving in this town, that white-frame mansion is nervertheless a tribute to this community's colorful past; the accomplished renovation and handsome setting are incentive for all those who would save something of our past, for the enjoyment of future generations.

The ceremonies planned for this afternoon are brief, with emphasis on enjoyment. At 1 p m. Ken Mercer, representing the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission, will take a few minutes to relate the history of that dwelling, and the story of its renovation. Starting at 1:30 you are invited to take a guided tour of that building which can now serve a variety of public uses.

Then at 2 p.m. the Pleasanton Junior Women will revive a "tradition" of their own ... fresh strawberries and ice cream served in the park, while the Pleasanton Bicentennial Band makes its public debut, and you are invited to buy a small flag or other momento of our nation's beginnings.

So gather up the family ... invite a friend ... give grandma and grandpa a very special treat ... and come one, come all to the "Century House and Pleasanton Bicentennial Park Festivities" this Sunday afternoon. It will help remind us what love of nation, community and neighbor is really all about.

And while you're there, take the time to tell somebody if you really like this kind of home-town affair. The people who work hard to make such events happen wonder sometimes if anybody out there really cares. Today you can give them your answer.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori. . .

Legislative record

With only one-fourth of the 1975-76 Session behind us, Sacramento-watchers are already making reference to the "do-everything Legislature."

Oldtimers are hard-pressed to remember when a State Legislature confronted so many critical issues in such a short period of time.

Certainly one of the reasons the State Capitol was an exceptionally busy place for the first six months of this year is that we were conducting three "special" sessions, in addition to the regular one.

The Governor convened the special sessions on the subjects of housing, medical malpractice and farm labor. Two were successfully resolved when the Governor signed a bill committing nearly $1 billion to housing and the agriculture labor relations act. We will begin to finalize work on medical malpractice when the Legislature reconvenes in August.

Public interest also was high over several pieces of legislation sent to the Governor — repeal of the mandatory NO x retrofit program in the six-county South Coast Air Basin, and revising the penalties and procedures for handling marijuana arrests and arrest records. The Assembly rejected a bill to reduce the drinking age to 18.

There was so much happening so fast that legislative proposals once Page 1 news received comparatively little attention.

One example is "no fault" auto insurance. In prior sessions it was the subject of exhaustive news reporting. I wonder how many people realize that in the last week before the recess, the Assembly sent the Senate a comprehensive no-fault bill by Assemblyman Alister McAlister (D-San Jose) which I coauthored.

There were major gains in tax reform — including abolition of the depletion loophole enjoyed by major oil companies. The constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to change the taxes of "big business" appears headed for a ballot showdown. The Assembly soon will be acting on a Senate-passed bill eliminating the insurance company home office exemption, which also will require voter approval. And the Assembly has given the Senate a bill by Assemblyman Daniel Boatwright designed to more fairly tax "preferential" income.

The battle to enact a state budget for 1975-76 received ample attention, with the finalized $11.47 billion spending program signed by the Governor testimony to how seriously we view present economic realities. It is a budget far below the growth pattern established by the former Administration and one that makes "cut, squeeae and trim" appear inflationary by contrast.

The future of the century-old State Capitol was settled. Shelved was a $96 million plan to convert the beautiful golden dome into a museum and build a new Capitol complex. Instead the structurally-unsafe old building will be restored, using money set aside in earlier years, and remain the working seat of state government.

The Governor signed legislation by Senator Arlen Gregorio (D-San Mateo) giving local school districts authority to relax physical education requirements for older high school students and to establish smoking areas on campus.

He also signed the bill by Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy (D-San Francisco) strengthening child labor laws, and a measure by Assemblyman Tom Suitt (D-Indian Wells) preventing elected officials from drawing a salary and retirement pay for the same job. A bill by Assemblyman Richard Robinson (D-Santa Ana) requiring the State Public Utilities Commission to meet in public was also signed by the Governor.

While we made great progress, with 4,117 Senate and Assembly measures introduced, the agenda beginning in August will be a full one.

Still pending is the controversial bill extending collective bargaining rights to 1.3 million public employees.

In the field of criminal justice, reforms in juvenile justice, the jury system and our prisons must be accomplished. My AB 1771, an act to prohibit the Youth Authority from Transferring juveniles to adult institutions, has passed the Assembly and awaits hearing in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Consumer legislation, such as repeal of "Fair Trade" laws and reducing the cost of prescription drugs, has passed our house and awaits Senate consideration. I am presently working on a bill to extend the statute of limitations in cases of consumer fraud.

There are a number of Medi-Cal reform measures still unresolved, and we must also determine the role the State is to play in mass transportation.

The elderly ... the environment ... election reforms .. recreation ... pollution ... you name it, all awaiting decision-making in Sacramento.

This is only some of the work the "do-everything" Legislature still has to do.

The week in retrospect

Major racing rejected

The race track at the County Fairgrounds is a major league operation!

This was borne out once again not only by the attendance and pari-mutuel wagering figures for the 12-day meeting recently concluded but disclosure that another application for a non-fair race season has been submitted.....reviewed and turned down.

The application sought racing dates in September with leading thoroughbreds and jockeys coming to Pleasanton from Bay Meadows. However, Fairgrounds Manager Lee Hall told this writer the bid for dates and a license....submitted about a month ago....was turned down by the California Horse Racing Board. Reasons for the denial were not advanced.

It is obvious the Pleasanton plant has demonstrated it can conduct a major race meeting. The question is whether the turnouts would make the operation feasible and if the city and other events on the grounds could take another three to five weeks of racing.

A race meeting in September, such as was proposed, would run into stiff competition for the wagering dollar....not the least of which is the Oakland Raiders. It'll cost you $9 to see a pro football game in the Bay Area this fall and that's equal to about five race track admissions.

The Bay Area spectator is satiated with sports and cultural events on a magnitude that few other major population areas can boast of.

Whether horse racing fans would come back to Pleasanton in sufficient numbers just two months after the close of the Fair season is questionable. And whether the local populace would stand for it is something else.

The racing and operations report submitted earlier this week by County Fair Director of Racing Everett Nevin is precisely reflective of the local plant's prosperity.

Total Fair revenue for the '75 meeting was $1,283,366.94, up approximately $125,000 from last year. At 5.50 per cent commission, the State revenue for '75 is $650,572.47.

The increase in the mutuel handle over last season was an impressive 10.33 per cent, the average handle $985,716 and the per capita wagering $96.41.

In looking over Nevin's six-page report, we are struck by the constant increase in every possible category from track attendance to wagering, purses paid and even racing program sales and parking income.

Nevin believes the grandstand and grounds attendance directly reflects the weather on a given day. He feels it is "the deciding factor." The average temperature was in the 80s and the single day high was 90. This temperature is the lowest high in the past 20 years. The high marks have usually been over 100 degrees with the zenith (113 degrees) coming in 1972.

In his concluding remarks, Nevin credits the various department heads at the track for the overall success. That includes Charles Palmer, secretary for quarter and appaloosa horses; Charlie Dougherty, race scheduling, Walter Kunz, horsemen's association; Kermit Henderson, mutuel manager, and Lou Alexander.

Nevin adds that "the track was in the best condition ever."

Whether the size of the track, though, has any bearing on additional race date applications is also something to consider. Beside the local reaction to a second season.

But the track operation is very definetly a major league affair.

County redistricting

Although at first glance it doesn't appear that the proposed redistricting of the supervisor's areas will have any effect on the valley, it is unwise to underestimate the importance of any shift in the way Alameda County is run.

For example, the decision to allow the development of Las Positas came from the board of supervisors, as will future decisions on future developments in the unincorporated areas of the valley.

Though the lack of attendance at the valley's only public hearing on the proposed redistricting can be laid to the apathy of people who won't be affected by the move, I think it somewhat naive to assume the matter is of no importance.

One veteran observer of the county scene confidently predicts that Tom Bates' Plan III will be adopted, because only one supervisor doesn't get what he wants.

Plan III gives Bates the Berkeley flatlands and the University of California, where he was a football player of some note. Since Bates is popular with minorities and with liberals, he shouldn't be too unhappy with that area.

If he should decide to go after Ken Meade's State Assembly seat, his district — area E in the plan — could easily elect a minority member to the council.

Parenthetically, that is one of the concerns of the supervisors, since no minorities are on the board at present. The setting up of a "minority" district — where a black or oriental could get elected — is a public goal of the supervisors.

Plan III's Distict C also could elect a minority supervisor, though Fred Cooper would have to be unseated. In fact, Cooper is the one almost sure vote against Plan III, since his district will be widened to include more of Oakland than in the past.

Charles Santana's South county district will include San Lorenzo, where he is strong, and not San Leandro, where he is weak, which should make him happy, while the conservative citizens of San Leandro will now be in Joseph Bort's district.

Bort is also strong in Castro Valley, and Plan III allows him to keep that bit of territory.

Since Murphy is really unaffected by any of the plans, he could vote on other grounds — old political debts or whatever — but if three supervisors are definitely for Plan III, Murphy's vote is meaningless.

Plan V will make Cooper happier, but will upset Santana because it gives him San Leandro. It also makes it tougher for a minority to get elected and gives Bort an area of Oakland he would not be expected to do well in.

Although the supervisors are not bound to accept Bates' plans as is, it is expected they will stick fairly close to one of them.

And regardless of the turnout Thursday night, the one they eventually choose will have a great effect on the valley, for the valley supervisor only has one vote.

Who has the other four is more important in terms of county decisions in the valley.

Letters to The Times

'SAVE' revisited

An open letter to:

Dear Councilman Miller and cohorts (if the shoe fits, wear it).

As a former SAVE initiative supporter I would like to clarify my former support of this initiative. My aim WAS NOT to slow or stop growth but to change, in the minds of our city fathers, school board members, and their respective staffs, the PRIORITIES which were being espoused by those in power. I agreed that the water, schools, sewer system, safety services, etc., needed help, but I had hoped this help would come from the channeling of funds away from the many low priority, useless, and wasteful pursuits which our administrators deemed so important, such as: 1) mini-parks, 2) consultant fees, (try asking J.Q. Public, oh great big brother, what WE would like in our city and in our schools), 3) foolish lawsuits to keep out Gelderman and effective teachers, etc. 4) keeping commercial and industrial interests out of all but the downtown area in spite of the fact that their presence might spread out the tax bases and relieve some of the homeowner's burden.

Instead, your answer seems to be: 1) increased taxes through surcharges and increased tax rates even though our assessed evaluation keeps going up which nets the city more money without increased rates, 2) increased business fees for those already here instead of encouraging and providing for newcomers, 3) increased sewer service charges, up 400% in about eight years, 4) and restrictive sign ordinances which have a place but ours border on the ridiculous.

These actions were not the intent of many save supporters, including me, nor did we intend to put hundreds out of work or keep others from finding jobs close to home (not the implications for reduced smog).

Please reconsider your "mandate from the people" and start listening and changing the priorities of spending to what we need and want instead of what you think is best for us. You are representatives and employees of the people of this city, not our supervisors, bosses, anarchists or kings.

round the town

I can keep the news secret no longer. Tuny Marie has arrived! She made her entry right at 10 a.m. Thursday, Queensland time. (Or would that be 10 a.m. Wednesday? - never can get it straight whether they are 18 hours ahead or behind American time.)

In any event, we got the word at 4:25 in the morning. Fortunately, I had not been sleeping for the past hour, so nothing much was lost there. But a body still jumps straight off the mattress when a telephone bell summons at such a time.

"Hello. Hello? HELLO!!!" The important thing with any telephone link between the coast of California and the far reaches of Australia is to make certain that they are there and you are here. It is never easy.

After dispensing with the overseas' operator, and all those hello's, there is a conversation, of sorts.

"We have a baby girl," is the first sentence of any consequence. Thereupon the line goes dead, and we spend the next five minute in a two-continent hassle with a pair of indifferent operators. Finally we are re-connected, and the initial declaration can be improved upon a little.

For those of you who have been grandparents many times over ... and for those who are far from that prestigious promotion ... I suppose these occasions are less than earth-shaking. But this is only our second time around. With the same all-star cast. Being so far from California — or from anything else, for that matter — the day-to-day happenings to our Queensland branch takes on a special meaning. Having shared that rugged country with them for two weeks, we have a special appreciation of how it really is, down under.

The journey to the nearest hospital — 60 or 80 miles, depending on your choice — is an experience in itself. Even for the un-pregnant. We covered 20 miles of that journey, and 20 miles back again, during one long day of our visit. For reasons not yet clear, I was behind the wheel of their small truck. The two women and the baby shared the driver's seat. Jim rode shotgun in the back, more or less. Almost lost him on a couple of bumps, and one particularly challenging bog.

The thought of that young mother and father, and the impending one, riding that road for a date with medical destiny, is a little scary. Most doctors order the mother (and father too, if he can spare the time) into the hospital a good week ahead of the expected event. No charge for either. That's one of the beauties of the Australian hospital system.

"Eight pounds, eight ounces," Jim was hollering. At first it came over as "eighteen pounds." Took quite a bit of shouting to clear that up. That makes two girls in two trys. Michaeleen is already a seasoned ranch hand. Fourteen going on 15 months. Girls are especially precious in that part of the world. Any rancher is pleased to have a bunch of 'em, within reason, that is.

Girls can milk the cow, cook dinner, make clothes, put away the preserves, drive tractor, help with the roundup, and give the family encouragement over the latest crisis. Men are not near so flexible, or vital, in that rugged land. In our stay, we came to appreciate the role of a wife and mother. No need for women's lib down there. The ladies know where they stand, and so do the men. One couldn't survive without the other.

Jim got himself a dandy, after just two years as a displaced Yank. He bought the ranch first. "I saw it needed an awful lot of work, so I went 20 miles down the road and found this girl. It's worked out pretty well."

In truth, Deirdree turned him down, the first couple of times. "I liked him, but thought him a bit forward," she relates. Being also a beauty, great seamstress, good milker and the whole lot, she was also able to choose from the best in three shires. Jim probably looked more desperate than the rest. Anyway, she finally said "Yes."

Now they are well blessed, with two little girls, a ranch they can't afford to clear, cattle that won't sell, pigs that eat more than they're worth, a truck with a broken exhaust pipe. And they are happier than most young people of our acquaintance, in our own well-endowed land.

"We can make do very well." It is an expression heard often, in the far reaches of Queensland, in the place of the cactus and the the rabbit, the long months of drought, followed too often by the unexpected flood. It is a land to test the most rugged of men, and the most talented of women. And the babies, too.

"We're all fine, just fine!" That was Deirdree's voice. Twenty five minutes earlier she had brought a new life into the world. Another strong body to help with the chores, another bright reason to keep up the struggle.

By now the word will have passed from Miles to Roma, to Jackson and all points in between. The Gales will have tried to convey the word to Deirdree's sister on that station in the northern wilderness. Telephone connections will be critical. There will be more than the usual day's crop of "Damned the bloody thing" when the system breaks down. But, above all, it will be a time for celebrating, and a long evening in the pub for the men. Tuny Marie's arrival will be remembered by most as one gigantic hangover.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

A lonesome cowboy galloped with his horse through sage and chaparral a century or so ago, searching innocently for a herd of errant cattle, when he came to the edge of the most massive ditch man has ever imagined.

He reigned in his horse, caught his breath, and digested the impossible scenery slowly.

"Golly," he said, after sufficient time for thought and reflection. "What a gully!" That is the way Chick Vihel, who is normally a disciple of the truth, tells the story.

The Navajo Indians, who have been around for even longer than Chick, have another version.

Their legends tell of a great flood which inundated the land to great flood brought on by great rains which inundated the land to great depths and which would have drowned them had not a convenient miracle allowed them to temporarily turn themselves into fish.

The flood carved a giant ditch into the floor of the high plateau in what is now Arizona, an outlet for the floodwaters which eventually became the monsterous ravine now known as the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Probably Chick and the Indians are both right to some degree. Certainly the flat, brush covered land which surrounds the Grand Canyon in no way suggests the monumental natural sculpture which lies beyond the last company of scrub juniper and pine.

The canyon must have come as a complete surprise to any cowhand who approached it unsuspectingly and there is no reason not to believe one of them remarked on the prodigious dimensions of that unbelievable gully.

There is, of course, a geological explanation for that massive work of art, four to 18 miles wide with an average width of nine miles and one mile deep, which is carved through the heart of Arizona's high desert.

I don't think I will bore you with the grim and eons long story of the two rivers of the Kaibab Plateau which begins 35 million years back into the misty past and is still being written today.

The towering sculpture wrought by the drainage from the upper Hualapai drainage and the ancestral upper Colorado speaks for itself.

It shattered, to some degree, the myth in my mind that there was nothing on the face of this tired old globe to equal the granduer of Yosemite Valley.

The Grand Canyon can do it, my friends. In many ways it surpasses that granite walled valley in the high Sierra. Certainly there are places where the Arizona artwork could swallow the pride of California with a single gulp and hardly have indigestion.

I am inclined to doubt though that the splendor bright colors of the spires and peaks in the canyon can equal the polished splendor of those smooth and shining granite peaks which shelter evergreens and hardwoods which flourish on Yosemite's floor.

We left Jerome in mid-afternoon or earlier, having stopped for a visit to the museum and a stone where the miners had once held contests of skill, strength and speed with a diamond drill.

Chick showed us the place where his brother had once drilled a hole right through the four foot stone, then we snaked our way down the mountain into Clarkdale for lunch and on to the home of Tom Knoles, Skeeter's uncle, a nonagenarian spry as a high school halfback who mows his field of alfafa once a week regularly in the summertime.

Chich showed some small crack in his iron will when he took a short nap while I visited with tom, then we drove on through magnificent Oak Creek Canyon where our guide complained about the lack of planning and unrestricted building and I got some pretty good art in spite of the ugly invasion of the area by humanity.

We paused in Flagstaff, thank God, not by design but by the stroke of luck which made it impossible to get a room in Grand Canyon Village on a Saturday evening on the weekend before the Fourth of July.

Chick suggested driving on and sleeping on the pine needles which floor the forest when we tired but cooler heads which desired warmer beds prevailed.

Truth of the matter is we only procured rooms in Flagstaff because of Chick's connection with the state Board of Education and his considerable prominence in Arizona.

However they were procured, they were welcome. The Vihels are tough and the Knoles perhaps tougher and God help me the Robertsons may be toughest of the lot.

But the Robertson's, being of the weaker sex if you will forgive this male chauvinist pig, tired out and begged for mercy, sparing this old humiliation of doing the same.

You will be happy to know the wheat squeezings in Flagstaff are as warming and welcome as those in the good old Livermore Valley, the roast beef as rare and a bed is a bed, God bless it, when a man's bones are weary and his eyelids heavy.
